A LETTER FROM THE Greenhouses

“The joy of brightening other lives becomes for us the magic of the holidays.”

– W.C. JONES

This quote holds a bit of truth. Here at Bayport Flower Houses, we fully embrace the holiday season and everything it has to offer. Our home-grown poinsettias, carefully nurtured right here in our greenhouses, are beginning to show their brilliant reds, whites, and pinks—just in time to fill your home with festive cheer.

The season also brings some of our favorite traditions, like our Holiday Open House Event, where we'll be sharing inspiration, holiday décor ideas, and plenty of seasonal spirit. It's one of the highlights of our year, and we can't wait to celebrate with you!

And of course, as Thanksgiving draws near, our team has been busy crafting beautiful centerpieces to grace your holiday table. Whether you're hosting a big family gathering or a cozy dinner, a hand-designed arrangement from our designers adds the perfect finishing touch.

The holidays always remind me of so many wonderful memories here at the garden center—early mornings in the greenhouse surrounded by the scent of pine and poinsettias, or watching families pick out the perfect centerpiece together. These are the simple joys of the season, and we feel so lucky to share them with all of you.

Stop in soon, say hello, and let's welcome this wonderful holiday season together.

Warm wishes,

John Auwaerter

PLANT OF THE MONTH

POINSETTIAS

Euphorbia pulcherrima

The poinsettia (Euphorbia pulcherrima) has long been a holiday favorite, adding vibrant color to homes throughout the Christmas season and beyond. Today's newer varieties are longer-lasting and available in a stunning range of colors—red, pink, cream, white, and even unique shades like lime-green 'Envy'.

Among our favorites are the Princettia® series, featuring four beautiful shades of pink that make the perfect gift plant. Here at Bayport Flower Houses, we grow over 25 varieties of poinsettias right in our own greenhouses.

Poinsettias thrive in warm, bright, and humid conditions—but dislike cold drafts, darkness, or overwatering. And for that extra festive touch, our design team can customize any of our home-grown poinsettias with elegant bows, glitter branches, wintergreens, ornaments, and more—creating a truly one-of-a-kind holiday gift.

Florals from our tables To Yours

This Thanksgiving, let your table bloom with the beauty of the season. Each of our handcrafted centerpieces is designed right here at Bayport Flower Houses, with fresh flowers and a touch of holiday warmth — the perfect finishing touch to your family gathering.

GETTING YOUR GARDEN READY FOR WINTER

ESSENTIAL CARE TO HELP YOUR GARDEN REST, RECHARGE, AND RETURN STRONGER

by John Auwaerter, Lead Grower

The air feels a little crisper, the days are a little shorter—and just like that, fall is here. While many of us are busy with back-to-school routines, cozying up our homes, or even starting to think about the holidays, it's easy to forget about our gardens. But this season is actually one of the most important times of the year for setting your plants up for long-term success. If cared for properly now, your garden will not only survive the winter but also thrive when spring rolls around again. Here are a few key steps to focus on before the frost comes:

Cutting Back & Pruning

Pruning can feel intimidating, but it doesn't have to be. While heirloom varieties of roses, hydrangeas, and other traditional plants require very specific pruning techniques, most modern cultivars are far more forgiving. The key is to remember that plants are preparing for dormancy during the winter. Cutting back excess branches and foliage allows them to conserve energy and strengthen their root systems before the frost sets in.

When in doubt, give us a call or stop by and ask us directly. We're always happy to give advice tailored to your specific plants.

Mulching: A Blanket for Your Roots

It's easy to think mulch is only for weed control in summer, but in fall it plays an even more important role: protecting the root zone. A 2–3 inch layer of mulch acts like insulation, helping to prevent freezing and locking in valuable moisture.

If spreading mulch isn't in your plan this year, don't worry—you can use fallen leaves instead. Rake them into your garden beds rather than hauling them away. Not only do they help insulate your plants, but as they break down, they provide natural nutrients for your soil.

Fertilizing & Watering

Even though your plants are slowing down, they still need food and water. Fall is the perfect time to give them a “last meal” before dormancy. Use either a balanced synthetic fertilizer (look for fall/winter formulas) or an organic option like compost, fish emulsion, or seaweed extract. Just be mindful not to overdo it—follow the recommended fall application rates on your product.

As for watering, keep an eye on the weather. While fall typically brings steady rain, there can be dry spells, too. Don't assume your plants are getting enough moisture—check the soil and water as needed until the ground begins to freeze.

Final Thoughts

Gardening doesn't stop when summer ends—it just changes. By giving your plants the right care now, you're setting yourself up for a lush, healthy, and rewarding spring. As always, if you're unsure about pruning, fertilizing, or any aspect of fall garden care, don't hesitate to reach out.

Happy Gardening!
